

Autumn Senses

Hello! I am going on an autumn walk. I am wrapped up warm with my coat, hat and scarf.

On my walk I am going to use all of my senses. I have five different senses.

Can you guess what they are?

My Five Senses

Click on each one to find out more.

My Sense of Sight

I can see with my eyes.

My eyes tell me lots of things about the world around me.

I can see colours and shapes.

My eyes help me to see what things look like.

My Sense of Smell

I smell with my nose.

There are lots and
lots of different
smells.

I can tell if something
smells nice.

I can tell if something smells nasty.

My Sense of Hearing

Some sounds are loud and some
are quiet.

Some sounds I like
and some
I do not.

My ears help
me to hear.

I hear sounds with
my ears.

back

My Sense of Touch

Touching something can tell me how it feels. It might feel smooth, spiky or maybe even slimy.

Touching something can tell me if it is hot or cold.

When I touch something, I can feel it.

I can use my hands to touch something.

back

My Sense of Taste

My tongue helps me to taste something.

Tasting something tells me if something is sweet, spicy or salty.

Some tastes I like and others I do not like.

Every time I eat something, my tongue is telling me how it tastes.

back

I use my sense of hearing to hear...

squirrels
chattering in the trees

the rustle and crunch of autumn leaves under my feet

the wind blowing through
the trees

I use my sense of sight to see...

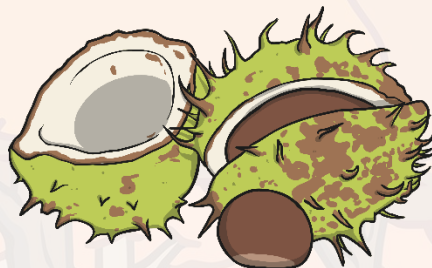

the shiny,
brown acorns

the red, yellow, brown, green and gold leaves

the bright orange
pumpkins

I use my sense of touch to feel...

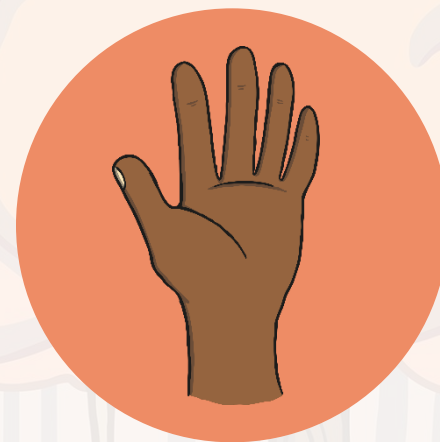

the spiky shell
of a conker

a smooth, shiny
conker

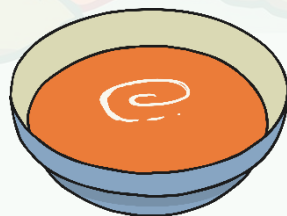

the crisp and crunchy
autumn leaves

I use my sense of smell to smell...

the autumn rain

people making hot
and yummy soup

autumn bonfires

I use my sense of taste to taste...

some yummy, sweet
blackberries

a delicious stew made
with lots of fresh autumn
vegetables

a delicious hot drink which
warms me up
